

THE DAILY SENTINEL is two cents a copy, ten cents a week, fifty cents a month, $4.00 a year—either by carrier or mail.

THE WEEKLY SENTINEL is 5 cents a copy, fifty cents per six months, $1.00 a year; in clubs of ten or more, ninety cents a copy one year, and a free copy to the publisher of the club—cash in advance.

ADVERTISEMENTS: In the Daily or Weekly six cents a line (seven words) each insertion in local column. No charge less than twenty-five cents. Amusements, "meetings," "lectures" and special notices on the first page in large type, ten cents a line. Nothing less than fifty cents. Announcements of "weddings," "lost," "found," marriages and deaths, twenty-five cents.

Checks and money orders to be made payable to E. A. K. HACKETT.

The average circulation of THE DAILY SENTINEL, exceeding that of any paper in the state, outside of Indianapolis, shows now completely it maintains its superiority as the most effective and economical advertising medium in the west. Not only in the number of papers sold, but in the character of its audience, it stands higher than any other journal in the state, published outside of Indianapolis.

THE SENTINEL is read by the most intelligent and prosperous class of people in Northern Indiana.

CONGRESS has adjourned for the holidays.

And yet the eleven-foot snow, though long overdue, has not made its appearance.

THE Joe Jefferson company at the Grand opera house this evening in the play of "The Rivals."

It would seem from last evening's News that matters and things are not altogether lovely in the republican camp on the senator question.

According to the News, there are republicans in Fort Wayne who have a prejudice against clean shirts and kid gloves, and who for that reason are disposed to raise a row over the prospect of General Ben. Harrison (who is said to be in favor of both) being elected to the senate.

We had supposed it was only democrats that held prejudices of this sort against General Ben. At least, that is what the News said before the election. It seems, however, our neighbor was not fully posted as to the state of opinion among the republicans on this subject at that time. Either this must be so, or else this aversion to clean linen must have broken out among them since, "suddenly," as it were. To what extent it extends, is not stated, though the News would fain have us think it is not wide spread enough to seriously disturb the prospect of General Ben's election. If the News had possessed the nerve to state some few who entertained the sentiments he denounces, one might have been able to form an opinion for himself as to the extent. But as it seems to have been too timid for that, we are left wholly to conjecture both as to the extent of the feeling and its probable effect upon the party action.

GOOD FOR FORT WAYNE.

It seems that an account is kept at the postoffice department of all mistakes made in the business of the several offices throughout the country. We take pleasure in recording the fact that, in this mistake account, our own Fort Wayne postoffice takes the palm for the smallest number of mistakes, amount of population and business considered, to be found in the state, only two mistakes having been charged to it as against one hundred and one charged to the office at Indianapolis. We are at a loss how to account for this high stand of our postmaster as compared with the one at Indianapolis, unless it be that our man is a printer and the other fellow is not. But our neighbor should not fool himself with the idea that the merit of his post office record is to be of any service to him in the tussle for re-appointment. Both parties and republicans, and more especially republicans, are proverbially ungrateful, and if George Wilson or Homer Hartman or any other from among the hungry crowd of applicants for the office, can show a stronger list of partisan services rendered than our neighbor, his small per centage of business mistakes will be of but very little service to him. This is what is called "business" when the time for appointments comes round.

SENATOR McDONALD.

If, as seems to be generally believed in Fort Wayne, Senator McDonald is so selfish as to oppose an appropriation for a government building at Fort Wayne, on the ground that the United States court at this point would interfere with his practice at Indianapolis when he leaves the senate, it is to be hoped that parties from the northern counties, having business in the federal courts, will give the senator and his law firm a wide berth, as a practical set-off to this unexpected exhibition of piggishness on his part. At the last session of congress, when, as yet, it was supposed the senator's party in this state would be able to return him to the senate, he was both active and influential in furthering Fort Wayne's appropriation for a court and public building. We understand, however, that the senator's zeal for our interest has so far died out along with his prospects for re-election, as that he now opposes what under more promising personal prospects for himself, he heretofore favored. It is barely possible that this sudden change of position may result from changed convictions of public duty; but we can not refrain from attributing it rather to views of personal selfishness. This is the way the thing looks to us, and we may as well state it plainly as to be mealy-mouthed about it. At the same time, as we are guided in these remarks solely by inference from statements made and discussed in our midst, it is possible we may be doing the Senator injustice—although we think that improbable. And if we find that we are in error we shall not hesitate to make the most ample reparation in our power.

ONE OF HAYES' BLUNDERS.

Making an Inferior Officer Out-rank his Commander—How it was Rectified.

A dispatch from Washington, published yesterday, stated that Major-General Hancock had been assigned to his present duty by R. B. Hayes according to his brevet rank of Major-General, conferred on March 13, 1865. As General Hancock has been a Major-General since July 26, 1865, and was several years ago assigned as such to the command of the military division of the Atlantic, which command he still holds, it caused some surprise that he should be again assigned to that command, simply as a Brevet Major-General.

Mr. Hayes's action is explained as follows: Col. Geo. W. Getty of the Third artillery commands Fort Monroe and the artillery school in connection with it. In European countries an officer with a similar command is always a General. Mr. Hayes availed himself of Colonel Getty's brevet rank of major-general, which had been conferred upon him on the same date that General Hancock was raised to that rank, to assign him to duty at Fort Monroe as such. This, although it did not increase his pay, made him a full major-general for the period of his assignment, dating back to 1865. It entitled him to superior quarters, to a staff of three aides, to be addressed as major-general in army orders, and to salutes from war vessels entering the harbor. The assignment made him practically a senior major-general to General Hancock, who was created such in 1866, and had never been assigned to duty under his brevet rank of 1865. Fort Monroe is included in the Department of the Atlantic, and General Getty, under the new assignment, outranked his commander. The attention of Mr. Hayes being called to this error, he assigned General Hancock to duty as commander of the military division of the Atlantic, under his brevet rank of 1865, the order to date from Dec. 4, 1880, which was previous to the assignment of General Getty. Notwithstanding this, the two major generals would now, to all appearances, be on the same footing, as both were breveted major general on the same day. General Hancock is, however, the senior. When two officers are breveted simultaneously, he who holds the higher rank at the time of the brevet takes precedence. General Hancock, when breveted, was full brigadier general in the regular army, while General Getty simply held the rank of major in the fifth artillery.

Stewart's Body.

Gath, in Cincinnati Enquirer. The body of A. T. Stewart has never been recovered. That is the information I have from persons close to Judge Hilton. The thieves who stole it relied upon a woman's weakness to redeem the bones at a costly price. But to the same religious feelings Mrs. Stewart's friends appealed when they told her that if she purchased those poor bones no man would lie safe in his grave; that they were not necessary to the repose of her husband's soul, and that if he could appear to her in spirit he would tell her never to give one cent to keep alive such an example. Hence the grave robbers' had their nasty work and subsequent expense and long waiting on a reward for nothing. I once asked Judge Hilton for some information of that subject, and he said:

"I would probably tell you if I had anything to say, but the newspaper discussion of the subject is mainly designed to admit the thieves and extort money from Mrs. Stewart. When the subject dies out, and the wounds of the hour are healed, it may be time to talk up that question."

A SAD LOVE STORY.

Ending in the Arms of a Young Wife.

A sad love story ended in a tragedy on the Warsaw pike, in the suburbs of Cincinnati, Friday evening. An alarm caused by the burning of the stable of Mrs. Ewald called out the fire department. In the ruins was found the charred body of her son's wife, Mrs. Barbara Ewald. Near by lay the iron skeleton of a thirty-two calibre Colt's revolver, with every chamber empty. The coroner noticed a protuberance in the abdomen, and had the remains carried into the house, and opening the abdomen, took from it the smoking body of a half-baked female fetus of about five or six months' gestation, large and well formed. Calling the husband, he asked how long they had been married, and was told nine weeks. Young Ewald said the child was his; that he knew of his wife's condition when he married her. They had loved each other for several years, but had been prevented from marriage by the opposition of both families. The families were next neighbors, though separated by a considerable distance, and hence the lovers saw each other often. The girl was under age, and finding that by no means could the opposition of the girl's mother, Mrs. Schultz, a widow, be overcome, he had purposely seduced her, upon the discovery of which her mother's opposition vanished, and the two were married. The young husband was terribly affected.

There is reason to suspect that her husband's love was not sufficient to shield her from the taunts a girl is compelled to bear under the circumstances, and shame at her condition had affected her mind, for a letter was found after the discovery of the body, lying in the house on a piece of furniture, which indicated suicide under insanity. It ran: "My husband: With grief I write a few words to you. My last hand, and last look, and last kiss for you. Take it not hard, loved, darling husband. I must leave you forever. Think not hard of me, for I am in such misery here. I told you if it turned out so, my life is not for this world. I cannot bear those words. There will be peace in our graves. My last love, kissing your place in bed, I will see you no more alive. Husband, for give me, as I have asked in my prayers. My last love to my mother, and all my friends, Tilda Henry, and that sweet brother Harry. With tears I write husband."

Glove Making.

Glove making is coming up in this country, too, the goat kid being raised in large quantities; and that animal ought to be peculiarly adapted to some of the southern states. There is an excess of glovemakers in the world, and we have been importing numbers of them to Gloversville and other points in America. You can get a pair of the best class of kid gloves in France, made to measure, as you measure your shoes, for $1, whereas $2.50 is the retail price for gloves of the same class here. Here is another reason for a good department of agriculture, which shall point out variation of production and introduce the seedling.

A Happy Man at Lockport, N. Y.

E. C. Williamson, of this place, is rejoicing over the recovery of his wife, who has been an invalid for the past four years. She has regained her strength, her complexion is vastly improved, and she has walked more in the past month and is a stronger and better than she has been in years. He attributes these happy results entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Cast-Iron Follows.

Men of endurance have healthy kidneys and liver. No aches in the back, no piles or constipation. The cure for these diseases is Kidney-Wort. This great remedy keeps up the tone of the whole body by cleansing the liver, bowels and kidneys to perform their functions perfectly. Both the liquid and dry are sold by druggists—Pioneer Press, Dec. 22, d1w-w1.

Thirty Year's Experience of an Old Nurse.

Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for thirty years with never-failing success by millions of mothers for their children. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhea, griping in the bowels and wind-colic. By giving health to the child, it rests the mother. Price, twenty-cents a bottle. and d&w

He says the books of the company are open for inspection, and the statements of the earnings are strictly in accordance with the facts.

Jack Swayne, the brakeman on the Grand Rapids road who was injured a few weeks ago, is resting easy. The leg was cut on both sides, from mid-way to the knee down through the foot, and the wounds were sewed up yesterday. Jack had just coupled some cars at a station west of Kendallville, and as he went to get on the lower step of the caboose he tripped up a spike, which threw him down, and he caught the railing of the caboose as it was passing, but did not succeed in getting on, and was dragged quite a distance, with the wheel of the car running on his leg and foot, before the conductor could check the train. There were no bones broken, but the flesh was fearfully lacerated and his leg is now swollen and black as far up as the knee joint. Jack now belongs to a crippled crew, as the conductor is minus three fingers from his right hand, and the other brakeman has had both thumbs taken off.

Grand Fair.

St. Joseph's church, Bluffton, will hold a grand fair in the Opera house at that place, commencing on Tuesday, Dec. 21st, and continuing for four days. A grand gift concert Friday evening, Dec. 24th, will conclude the entertainment, at which time a number of costly prizes will be drawn. The tables will be laden with articles suitable for Christmas and New Year's presents which will be disposed of by sale. Numerous kinds of amusements will be indulged in to the enjoyment and amusement of all. Supper will also be served between 8 and 11 o'clock each evening. Special arrangements have been made with the railroad authorities to carry passengers attending the fair at half rates. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend and pass a pleasant evening. Admission ten cents.

Midnight Christmas Eve Service at Trinity Church.

The festival of Christmas will be ushered in by a grand musical service, beginning at midnight, 25th inst. An exceedingly rich and attractive musical programme has been prepared for the occasion. The public are cordially invited.

Service on Xmas day at half-past ten.

Among the musical attractions at the midnight service will be a beautiful trio by Mrs. DeVries, and Messrs. Cromwell and Jacobs.

Cosmo Club.

Thomas Deveny and his cousin from Fort Wayne visited our village last week.

The condition of Miss Katie Kane is not improved.

Mrs. Fitch, of Denver, this state, visited Cosmo last week.

The Christmas tree and festival will be at the school house, Friday evening, under the auspices of the Lutherans.

Martin Mensch and Mr. Garrett, of Wayne, visited at Mr. Kane's east here, Saturday last.

The wife of our Christian minister here has been declared insane. They have the entire sympathy of the friends here.

A splendid breakfast on the table surrounded by a family of coughs. They used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and that family now keeps it always on hand and recommends it. Price only 25 cents a bottle.

THE RAILROADS.

Local, General and Personal Notes.

Trains are all on time.

Passenger travel is good on all the roads.

Kelly McCracken will spend Christmas in Santa Fe.

Conductor McCarthy, of the Grand Rapids, is quite ill.

A new platform has been put down at the Wabash depot.

Superintendent O'Rourke was at Grand Rapids yesterday.

The Pittsburgh shops have all the work they can possibly do.

The Pittsburgh track never was in better condition than at present.

K. H. Wade, superintendent of the Wabash, went to Toledo yesterday.

The freight business, on all the roads running into this city, is exceedingly good.

Ten car loads of Texas cotton were transferred from the Wabash to the Pittsburgh road yesterday morning.

The clerks in the various railroad offices are kept busy, many of them having to work in the evenings to keep up with the work.

Frank Aurenz, formerly with the Pittsburgh railroad, is now engaged in the saw mill business in Alabama. A brother of Frank and William Schiefer, formerly of the Peter's Box and Lumber company, are his partners and they are making Yankee enterprise win in the south.

The railroad blockade at Philadelphia and Baltimore has helped the western roads inasmuch that cars are not quite so scarce and shippers to other points can now be accommodated. The Pittsburgh road is not receiving any freight for the points mentioned.

Several cars of merchandise and books were received at the Pittsburgh depot yesterday, direct from New York and billed to Honolulu. They were transferred to the Wabash at this place. That is quite a distance to ship freight, and will certainly cost the receiver a snug little sum of money for their transportation.

The statement which originated in a Boston paper and has been widely copied, insinuating that the large earnings of the Lake Erie & Western railroad may be cooked up, brings out the statement from the auditor of the road denying the report as malicious and false. He says the books of the company are open for inspection, and the statements of the earnings are strictly in accordance with the facts.

A Bad Son.

John Claus is a shoemaker, living on Broadway, and John is a bad man. Yesterday was his thirty-fifth birthday, and he celebrated it by getting on a big drunk and attempting to clean his father and mother out of the house. He danced, and drank and swore and wanted to whip his poor old father just because he thought he could do it, but his mother finally got him to the door and pushed him out. She gathered his bottles of whisky together and threw them after him and locked the door. John could scarcely realize the situation and he tore around until Officer Owens came along and took him to the cooler, where he slept off his drunken frolic and came up to police court this morning with aching head, blood shot eyes and parched tongue. His mother appeared against him and told her story in a mixture of German and English, and John nodded his head in unison with her tongue. His mother tried to make John believe he ought to be ashamed of himself, but he had taken a job of such magnitude that he dropped disgust. John has no more shame in him than a mule has.

For the next thirty days John's address will be "Allen County Jail," where he will hang up his stocking and eat his Christmas and New Year's turkey. John would like his mother to give him fifty cents to buy tobacco with until his time expires, but the old lady gave him ten cents, and told him not to buy any "snops" with it.

AMUSEMENTS.

JOE JEFFERSON.

The distinguished comedian, appears at the Grand this evening in his famous character of Bob Acres. Every one is familiar with Mr. Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle," and all are anxious to see him in his new role. Almost every seat in the lower part of the house has been reserved and those who were so unfortunate as to trust to providence for a nice seat have the sympathy of those who trusted to their own discretion and secured their seats several days ago. The following is the cast:

Bob Acres.....Joe Jefferson
Sir Anthony Absolute.....Fred Robinson
Capt. Absolute.....Maurice H. Barrymore
Sir Lucius O'Trigger.....Harry F. Waverly
Felland.....Thomas Jefferson
Fag.....J. Galloway
Lydia Languish.....J. Galloway
Lucy.....A. Fine Stephens
Mrs. Malaprop.....Mrs. John Drew

will be presented by the Criterion company Thursday evening at the Grand and is a very clever and amusing piece. No doubt a large audience will greet this company as they have appeared in our city before and left a very good impression on those who witnessed the rendition of this grand piece.

NOTES.

Friday evening will be presented the drama "Oae Hundred Wives," which is a sensational work on the horrors of Mormonism. The plot is deep and the cast good.

Saturday afternoon and evening Mrs. Scott Siddons will delight our theater people by her production of "King Rene's Daughter," "The Honey-moon" and "The School for Scandal." Mrs. Siddons is one of the finest actresses on the American stage, and receives none but the highest compliments from the best critics. The Toronto World, in speaking of the cast, says:

"Mr. Lablache was satisfactory as Charles Surface, with the exception that he was in some particulars a trifle lame. Perhaps the best acting of the evening was that of Mr. Harry Pearson in the character of Sir Peter Teale. It is impossible to conceive the part being more successfully assumed. Mr. Charles Jordan, to whom was assigned the role of Sir Oliver Surface, has a most unfortunate face for an actor. The noise which is popularly associated with laughter was not accompanied by any responsive appearance of mirth. To hear cackling sounds issuing from a face which, during the process, resembles the stony sphinx is ludicrous in the extreme. Mr. George Thorene deserves praise for his make-up as Moses. The other roles were assumed in a manner sufficiently successful to make the play, looked on as a whole, a rare treat."

Miss Wright was greeted at the Grand last evening by a very cultured and fashionable audience, who frequently applauded her. She is a handsome and talented young lady, has a rich, cultured voice and good facial expression. Should Miss Wright ever visit Fort Wayne again she will be received with a crowded house as she made many warm friends last evening. She was presented with two baskets of very choice flowers by her admiring friends last evening.

A fair audience witnessed the second performance at the Bijou last evening. The same programme of the previous evening was presented and things moved smoother than on the first evening. Next week a new, full and complete change will be made and some of the finest variety talent in the country will be presented.

Ten Days Married.

Then we married. Ten days were granted me of the most perfect happiness. We wandered about in the garden, taking the same walks as in old times, and in the same places. When my wife sang, it was like a flood of melody from heaven; the liquid round notes had such pathos in them, and I used to think, if ever I was ill or suffering, her voice alone would restore me. To a man who had never known what beauty there is in a woman's character, the tones of sympathy, the exquisite sentiment and purity of her thoughts were a revelation. Day after day things seemed to show me what a new, fresh and beautiful world lay around me. New lamps, new hand painted china, new cut glass, new gold band china, new decorated tea and dinner sets, new Malajolia ware, new plated silver ware, new table linens, all compliments of our friends, and at Ward's new store, on West Columbia street, Ward's Cheap Crockery Store.

Carnahan, Hanna & Co. have engaged the services of an excellent workman in connection with their retail store, who will repair boots and shoes with neatness and promptness.

A Late Thanksgiving Memory.

Down in the old conservative city of Boston Mr. George E. Chapman, one of the well and favorably known firm of Chapman Brothers, dealers in gentlemen's furnishing goods, corner of Washington and Court streets, made his devout thanksgiving with cause, as he had jokingly spent one dollar and bought one half of ticket No. 55,498 in the November drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery Company, for which he received from M. A. Doupin, New Orleans, La., fifteen thousand dollars in gold—Dec 22-d.w.
